Sir John A. Macdonald

VISITS QU'APPELLE.

On Friday last our citizens were on the quiver in anticipation of the arrival of Sir John A. Macdonald's special train which left Regina at thirteen o'clock arriving here at fourteen. As soon as the train stopped Sir John stepped off the platform accompanied by Lady Macdonald, the Hon. Mr. Denehy, and others of the party, and handshaking was going on enthusiastically when Mr. A. M. McLane, Chairman of the Municipality, stepped up with an address and read it to the honorable gentleman. It was as follows:
To the Right Honorable Sir John Macdonald, K. C. B., Premier of Canada:

SIR.—We the citizens of South Qu'Appelle extend to you a hearty greeting on your return from this your first trip over the Canadian Pacific Railway.

We regret that urgent business at the Capital prevents your spending a few days amongst us. We have here a fertile and beautiful section of the Northwest; and, though not best with an abundant harvest this year, we have every confidence that in the near future, Qu'Appelle will rank among the most thriving farming districts of the Dominion.

We congratulate you on the early completion of the Canadian Pacific Railway. While the early completion of this work is a matter of congratulation to you, it is of incalculable value to the inhabitants of the Northwest. It has wonderfully assisted our progress by giving us access to the markets of the world at an earlier date than was anticipated by the most sanguine. For your unflinching exertions in building this great national highway Canada owes you a debt of gratitude; while we in the Northwest more directly concerned, feel you have conferred on us a boon which will give you a lasting place in our hearts and memories.

While we congratulate you, Sir, on the pendency of feeling which now pervades our people as the result to the measure giving us a voice in the Representative Institutions of the country, which makes us a people truly Canadian, we most respectfully trust that the patriotism thus engendered will be still more firmly cemented by a regard to our intelligence and business capacities in filling positions of trust in these Territories.

We are pleased to hear your journey has been attended with beneficial results as regards your health, and we earnestly hope that you may be spared many years to give to the Dominion of Canada the benefit of your mature legislative experiences.

We also desire to convey to Lady Macdonald our best wishes and hope that her trip across the continent has been one of pleasure, and that she may be long spared as your helpmate.

In conclusion we trust that you will return to your duties so invigorated and refreshed that you will be tempted to soon renew your visit.

(Signed) A. M. McLANE,
G. H. V. BELLAIR,
G. S. DAVIESON,
R. FLEMING,
A. C. PATTERSON,
GEO. B. MURPHY,
Committee.

Sir John in reply said he was exceedingly thankful for their pleasing address, and he accepted it with gratitude. He was greatly pleased to hear that although there was a partial failure of crops this year they were not directly depressed, country.

The extraordinary drought of this year has not been confined to British America, but has been general to a greater or less extent all over the continent. An exceptional year does not prove anything. He still had the utmost confidence in the Northwest. He thought they could look forward hopefully to cycles of years that would prove favorable to the farmers of the country, and that they would reap rich harvests for their toil. (Hear, hear.) The address referred to the early completion of the Canadian Pacific Railway. It was a matter of pride and gratification to him to see it completed so soon. The Company had till 1891 to complete the road, but by their wonderful energy and capacity they had completed it in six years instead of ten, being four years in advance of ordinary expectation. Now that the railway was completed it would soon bring in the population to fill up the country. Unexpected sources of trade and traffic were springing up. The Company had the greatest confidence in their enterprise. The Government, having faith in the future of the Northwest did not hesitate to mortgage the country to build the railway. (Hear, hear.) We had loaned the Company money to be repaid in 1891, and they paid back the loan in 1886 in money and lands. They had handed over to the Government some of the best lands along the railway at $1.50 per acre. These lands had been estimated by Mr. Blake, the Leader of the Opposition—and he thought he estimated correctly—as being worth $3.75. The Government had thus secured the land at less than half its estimated value, which he thought was a very good bargain. (Hear, hear.) The Canadian Pacific Railway Company had built up its credit to such an extent that they were now strongly backed in England, and they would soon have no difficulty in procuring the necessary money to push the construction of the branch lines that were so much needed. Before visiting the Northwest he had great expectations of the country, but did not fully anticipate its natural resources. He was surprised at its wonderful capabilities as seen during his trip over the railway to British Columbia. Now that the line was completed, the timber and minerals of that province would be rapidly developed, and an enormous trade built up between the prairie and mountain sections. (Hear, hear.) He then spoke of the extraordinary grandeur of the mountain scenery, and concluded by thanking them on behalf of Lady Macdonald and himself for the kind wishes expressed in the address.

Sir John then stepped on the platform of the car when three cheering cheers were given for the Premier, Lieutenant Governor Dewdney and Lady Macdonald.

AT WOLSELEY.
The train stopped fifteen minutes. As Sir John appeared from the car three cheers burst spontaneously from the big crowd that had gathered to greet the grand old chief. No formal address was presented, but introductions, handshaking and conversation was engaged in. Mr. W. D. Pelly, M. N. W. C., introduced all the ladies and gentlemen present to Sir John and Lady Macdonald. When the distinguished party prepared to leave, three ringing cheers were given for Sir John and Lady Governor Dewdney. The stop at Wolseley was a pleasing variation from that of other points, no address being presented, thus giving the Dominion Premier an opportunity of a quiet walk, and a pleasant change of scene.

AT MOOSOMIN.

An address was presented and replied to by Sir John, and then Lieutenant Governor and Mrs. Dewdney separated from the party and returned to Regina by the evening express.

EDMONTON MAIL ROBBED.

Calgary, Aug. 23.—The Edmonton and Calgary stage, with two passengers, due here at 16 o'clock, was held up eighteen miles out of town by two masked men, who captured four hundred dollars in money and the registered letters. No arrests have yet been made. The police are in hot pursuit of the robbers' and expect to overhaul them in a few hours.

Prince Albert, N. W. T., Aug. 21.

A man named Garnett, who has resided at the south branch for some time and who came into the country with the Seventh Fusiliers, was arrested on Wednesday here on suspicion of being the mail robber. The driver of the mail swears positively that the prisoner is the robber, and acting Mayor Betts recognized his voice but could not swear positively that the prisoner was the man. The prisoner was looking for land at the time of the robbery in the vicinity of Humboldt, and was known to have a double-barreled gun with him. The prisoner declined to say anything. He was committed to stand his trial at the next court.

To the Editor of the Progress.

SIR: I write to ask you if there is no means of preventing our streets from being used as training grounds for horses. Our citizens (especially the ladies) have been very much annoyed by the training of horses that has been practiced on the streets. Why do not the traders go to the race course where they will interfere with nobody?

Yours etc,

N. W. COUNCIL.

SESSION OF 1886

Full and Unbiased Reports! of the Proceedings will be given in

The Qu'Appelle Progress.

Session to open about the 13th Oct.-ber.

Our reports will be characterized by fairness, and will be fuller than ever the Council proceedings have been reported heretofore. The PROGRESS is determined to lead all others in its attention to all matters concerning the Northwest. Though only a few weeks established at the Session of 1885, its editorial articles were characterized by a spirit of independence which won for it the confidence and respect of all classes, and made for itself an immediate place in the front rank of journalism. Send in your subscriptions at once and do not delay till the session begins and then miss the first part of the proceedings. One dollar for one year payable invariably in advance.

A FAITHFUL REPRESENTATIVE.

The electoral district of Qu'Appelle is especially blessed in having for one of its representatives in the Northwest Council a gentleman so thoroughly well qualified as Mr. W. D. Parley. Since his election he has been untiring in his devotion to the interests of his constituents. He has procured large sums of money for expenditure on roads and bridges in this district, and has taken much pains to see what is required to be done in different sections in the way of the improvement of our highways. On Monday last he paid a visit to this town, and conferred with our Municipal Councillors and leading men as to what was required to be done in this vicinity. As a result of his visit $800 will be asked to be appropriated on the roads and bridges in this portion of the district by His Honor Lieutenant Governor Dewdney. The grant is much needed, for the improvement for which the money is sought are very necessary, and the people are unable to tax themselves to pay for them at present. They have heretofore shown much public spirit in paying for improvements and have given a bonus of $10,000 towards the roller mill. Owing to partial failure of crops this year the taxes must be light. Therefore it is to be hoped the grant will be made and the money spent at once.

The fifth tea vessel has started from Yokohama for Port Moody. The C. P. R. tea trade is developing.

Negotiations are in progress between the British and United States Governments to arrive at a solution of the fisheries difficulty.

A despatch from Kingston says the English Government has relieved Major General Strange of his pension. The General seems to be in bad luck, and it would seem that there is persecution or injustice somewhere.

The Rev. Mr. McDougall has at his own expense taken three Christianized Northwest Indian Chiefs on a trip to Ottawa. He will ask the Government for greater education facilities for Indian children.

Prince Alexander has resigned the throne of Bulgaria in consequence of Russian intrigues, and the Government of the province is composed of creatures of the Czar. It is feared European complications will follow.

The rousing cheers given for His Honor Lieutenant-Governor Dewdney at Qu'Appelle, Wolseley and Moosomin on the occasion of Sir John's trip eastward over the C. P. R., verifies the statements of THE PROGRESS in reference to Mr. Dewdney's popularity among the people of the Northwest.

Another crank by the name of Kendall has gone through the whirlpool in the Niagara river. He made the trip in a cork vest, and was so badly used up that he declared he would not do it again. He made the trip for $1,000 to settle a bet of $11,000 made by Boston parties.

The international position of affairs in Europe is very threatening at present. Russia has succeeded in deposing Prince Alexander from the Bulgarian throne, and the closing of the port of Batoum by Russia and its unsatisfactory reply to the English protest has rendered war probable between the two powers.

M. DeGiers' stiff reply to England's protest against the closing of the port of Batoum has produced a painful impression, which is not likely to pass away until some action is taken to suitably maintain England's dignity in the matter. The firmness of Lord Rosebery in making the protest is universally commended, but it is feared that the Czar, smarting under reproaches conveyed therein of bad faith, may go to even greater extremes. The situation is regarded as very grave.

While on his trip east, Sir John met Crowfoot, who was wearing the habiliments of war, Indian style, over the death of his little one. Sir John at once furnished the venerable chief with a suitable suit of sable clothes, and old Crowfoot goes around now dressed up in style, the pride and envy of the whole camp.

Manitoba News: For over a quarter of a century Sir John has been a Minister of the Crown, and for over forty years connected with the government of the Canadian people. Within that time Canada has risen from four insignificant colonies of Great Britain, such a source of weakness to each other and the Crown, into the great Dominion, the future greatness of which it is impossible for the most ardent enthusiast to overstate. The man who has held the helm of state during this wonderful stride in our national life is worthy of a right royal reception. To open territories and build them into a prosperous and contented nation is a great mission and demands great men, and Canada can well afford to be proud of the man whose political sagacity has accomplished so much.

Calgary Tribune: A good Tory citizen asked Mr. White when he was in town if there was any probability of an election in the Northwest for the Dominion House previous to the general election. Mr. White replied in the negative.

"That's queer," remarked the citizen. "What's the reason? I see the Regina Leader advocates a special election?"

"Very likely that's the reason," replied the Minister, "I'm sure I don't know."

The verdict in the Amherst case at Chicago, finds the prisoners simply guilty as charged. In the case of August Spies, Fred, Ling, Engle, Parsons, Felden and Schwab a verdict of manslaughter with a sentence of fifteen years in the penitentiary was returned. In the case of Neber, Mr. Black moved for a new trial and the judge set Thursday for any motions to be made by the defense. When the verdict was read not a sound was heard and for over a minute the people sat spell-bound. Then there was a faint sob and a low wailing moan. It came from the corner where the little old mother of Spies sat, and it was the signal for an outbreak of murmurs which ran over the assemblage. The unfortunate defendants themselves said nothing, not even moved. The judge in a few words discharged the jury, and the prisoners were taken by the bull's back to jail. As they reached the door Larry turned, looked at his sweetheart, and both their eyes filled with tears. Schwab heard a heartrending shriek from his wife, and saw her fall against the seat. He made a motion towards her, but collected himself and went on with the rest. "Arch, Gott!" shrieked the wife and then fell back in a dead faint. Restoratives were applied. When she regained consciousness she again resumed her cues. She was taken out and the others followed. Mrs. Parsons did not seem very much agitated. Spies' mother and all the rest of the women wept freely, and the crowd in the street stood aside in a respectful manner to let them pass. The court-room was then cleared and the people went away. The trial of the reds was over.

JAPANESE PROGRESS.

No people on the face of the earth has made such advances in civilization during the past twenty years as has that of the Japanese. The feudal system has been abolished. Two-fifths of the people have been emancipated from feudal bondage and put in possession of the soil; a feudal soldiery of over 600,000 has been disbanded, and in its place a regular army of 40,000 has been organized and drilled. A new capital in numbers and appearance has been built. The United States has been called into existence, full freedom of conscience has been established; the printing press, the telegraph, the railway, steam navigation, a general postage and savings bank system, etc., have all been introduced. Above all, a free system of compulsory education for the instruction of all children in the Empire has been organized, thereby declaring the equality of all before the law, and the right of each of the same legal protection. Not only this. Criminal as well as civil law has been greatly reformed, and the change effected in the state of prisons has been marvellous. Provincial Parliaments, also elected by the people, for the management of local affairs have been inaugurated, as precursors to the promised constitution and general parliament which have been promised and will be in operation in a few years. The whole system of justice has been revolutionized. In fact, in all the extension of law Japan has become a Christian nation. Can any other nation show such a record of twenty years' work? These thirty-five millions of Japanese are as law-abiding as civility, as inquisitive, as energetic as could be found anywhere. Surely such a people have a great future before them. And the progress of Christianity among the Japanese has not been small. Both the Roman Catholic and Greek Churches have many agencies at work, and count many converts, but 40,000 Christians are in the pamphlets we speak of refer exclusively to Protestant missions. There are more than 100 male missionaries, and 5,500 baptized converts. Several theological colleges for the training of native pastors are in operation. Hundreds of boys and young men are receiving instruction in schools under Christian influence. The same thing of girls' schools. It is also proposed to establish a Christian University, with an annual income of $70,000 for securing which an endowment fund of $1,200,000 is aimed at. The whole of the situation, in short, both in a religious and civil point of view, is marvellous, and in a very few years Canada may expect to be brought into very close commercial relation with this active and go-ahead people.—Victoria Times.

THE BRITISH FLAG.

We are all familiar with the white, blue, and red ensigns, and with the Union Jack which occupies the upper quarter nearest the flagstaff. The white ensign has the red cross of St. George in addition to the Union Jack. Without the Jack this white ensign with a red cross represents our old national flag as it existed from the time of Richard I. until the death of Elizabeth. This red cross flag, the banner of St. George, appears to have been chosen by the Soldier King in honour of the saint who was the patron of soldiers. It remained for more than 400 years the flag under which the English warriors fought on land and on sea. When James VI. of Scotland succeeded Elizabeth the Scotch had a national flag. That also was a cross, but it was shaped differently from that of St. George, and was known as the cross of St. Andrew. The ground of the Scotch flag was blue, and its cross was white. To mark the union of the two kingdoms under one sovereign the national banner and went through a change although Scotland still retained its separate Parliament. In the new flag the two banners of Scotland and England were united. There appeared in the oblique white cross of St. Andrew on a blue ground, and the red cross of St. George on a white margin, worked in the blue field. The King was contented to sign his name in the French form of James, "Jacques." He was, in fact, the Union Jacques, or, as we improperly pronounce it, Jack. For local purposes the Scotch still continued to use the white St. Andrew's cross on the blue field, and the English the red cross on the white field. It was stated by Royal Proclamation in 1606, that "whereas some difference hath arisen between our subjects of South and North Britain, travelling by sea, about the bearing of their flags; for the avoiding of all such contentions hereafter, we have, with the advice of our Council, ordered that from henceforth all our subjects of this Isle and Kingdom of Great Britain, and the members thereof, shall bear in their mantles the Red Cross, commonly called St. George's Cross, and the White Cross, joined together." And in their fore-top our subjects of South Britain shall wear the Red Cross only as they were wont; and our subjects of North Britain in their fore-top the white cross only, as they were accustomed." In 1707, when the Scotch and English Legislatures were united, the distinctive flags ceased to be used, and the united flags as arranged in 1606 became the single ensign for the United Kingdom. It was the sovereign that made the union and established the national flag, and again would not alter the flag. Ireland would take presumably for its local ensign the Red Cross of St. Patrick. The Irish banner ought to have appeared in the Union flag of 1606, but it did not. Ireland had no distinct recognition in the Union flag until 1801, when the Irish and British Legislatures were united. At that date the Union Jack underwent a further change, and the red diagonal cross of St. Patrick was introduced. Since that date the Union Jack has shown the red cross and white margin recalling the banner of St. George; the white diagonal and blue field of St. Andrew's banner; and the red diagonal cross of St. Patrick, showing over the white diagonal cross of the Scotch banner. The blue ground of the Jack is therefore due to Scotland, and the red and white as crosses and margins to England and to Ireland.—London Daily News.

THE ATLANTIC MAIL.

The shipping community is just giving considerable attention to a transatlantic service between Great Britain and Canada owing to the advertisement by the Government asking tenders for carrying the mails between Canada and England for five years from April next. It is a pretty sure thing that the competition will be unusually keen, plying between the Allan and Dominion Lines over this contract will not be seen upon this occasion, and that these lines make a joint tender for the contract as they manage it at present, divided between the two lines. The Beaver Lines will also probably tender this year, although it has not been decided to do so yet. This line has two steamers, the "Lake Superior" and "Lake Huron," which are more speedily than several of the vessels at present carrying the mails, and with the new vessel now building, will be in a good position to tender for one thing, which is that the Government specifies that no cattle shall be carried on mail steamers. As is well known the Beaver Line does a large cattle trade. Some excitement has been caused by the report that it is the intention of the Canadian Pacific Railway, or more correctly, some of the capitalists connected with that undertaking, to put in a tender to build a projected line of steamers which are to possess very superior speed to the present mail vessels. It is reported that the vessel of Sir Edward A. Smith, Sir George Stephen and Sir Angus to England, is in connection with this scheme, and it is well known that Mr. Van Horne is a warm advocate of a faster Atlantic service as he fears that the trade will be completely drawn away from Montreal by the swifter vessels of the American lines.

A leading shipping man informed a Star reporter today that he thought the establishment of a Canadian line of steamers to compete with the American lines, so far as speed is concerned, would be impossible without very large Government subsidies. The experience of the American companies has been that money is lost by the fast steamers, which are expensive to yond general belief, and they have the advantage of an enormous passenger traffic, which is lacking in Canada. He thought that the first way would be to divide the mail among the lines and single out the fastest vessels of all the lines running to Montreal for the mail service.—Montreal Daily Star.

THE VOLUNTEER COUNCIL.

John Taylor was licensed when a youth of twenty-one to practice at the Bar of H. C. He was poor, but well educated, and possessed of extraordinary genius. The graces of his person, combined with the superiority of his intellect, enabled him to win the hand of a fashionable beauty.

Twelve months afterwards the husband was employed by a wealthy firm of that city to go on a mission as land agent to the West. As a heavy salary was offered, he bade farewell to his wife and son. He wrote back every week, but received not a line in answer. Six months elapsed, when the husband received a letter from his employer that explained all.

Shortly after his departure for the West the wife and her father returned to Mississippi. Then she immediately obtained a divorce by act of the legislature, married again forthwith, and to complete the climax of her cruelty and wrong, had the name of Taylor's son changed to that of Marks—that of her matrimonial partner.

This period nearly drove Taylor insane. His career from that moment became eccentric in the first degree—sometimes he preached, sometimes he plied at the bar, until at last a fever carried him off at a comparatively early age.

At any early hour on the 8th of April, 1840, the Court House in Clarksville, Texas, was crowded to overflowing. Save in war times, there had never been witnessed so large a gathering in the Red River country, while the strong feeling apparent in every face will sufficiently explain the matter following.

About the close of 1839, George Hopkins, one of the wealthiest and most influential planters in Texas, offered a gross insult to Mary Ellen, the young and beautiful wife of his chief overseer. The husband threatened to chastise him for the outrage, whereupon Hopkins loaded his gun, went to Ellen's house and shot him in his own doorway.

The murder was arrested and bailed to answer the charge. The occurrence produced intense excitement, in order to turn the tide of popular opinion, or at least to mitigate the general wrath which was at first against him, circulated reports, infamously prejudicial to the character and standing of the woman who had suffered such cruel wrongs at his hands.

She brought a suit for slander, and thus two cases, one criminal and the other civil, and both out of the same tragedy, were pending at the April Circuit Court for 1840.

The interest naturally felt by the community as to the issue, became far deeper when it was known that Ashley and Price of Arkansas, and the celebrated S. S. Prentiss of New Orleans, each by enormous fees had been retained by Hopkins for the defence.

The trial for indictment for murder concluded on the 8th of April, with the acquittal of Hopkins. Such a result might have well been foreseen, considering the talent of the counsel engaged on either side.

The Texas lawyers were utterly overborne by the arguments and eloquence of their opponents. It was a fight of dwarf against giant.

The slander suit was set for the 9th, and the throng of spectators grew in numbers as well as excitement. And what seemed strange, the current of public opinion now ran decidedly with Hopkins. His money produced witnesses who served his powerful advocates. Indeed so triumphant had the success on the previous day, that when the slander case was called, Mary Ellen was left without an attorney—all had withdrawn.

The pigmy pettifogger dare not leave the sharp wit of Pike, and the seething thunder of Prentiss.

"Have you no counsel?" inquired Judge Mills, looking kindly at the plaintiff.

"No, sir, they have all deserted me, and I am too poor to employ any more," replied the beautiful Mary, bursting into tears.

"In such a case will not some charitable member of the profession volunteer?" asked the Judge, glancing around the bar.

The three lawyers were silent.

"I will, your honor," said a voice from the benches of the court, sitting behind the bar.

At the time of this voice many started half from their seats, and perhaps there was not a heart in that house that did not beat in some what quicker—it did not so unthinkingly, sweet, fragrant and beautiful.

The first sensation, however, was changed into laughter, when a tall, gaunt, spectral figure, that no person present remembered to have seen before, showed his way through the crowd, and placed himself within the bar.

His appearance was a problem to puzzle the sphygmograph. His high, pale brow, and his small, nervously twitching face seemed active, with the concentrated essence and cream of genius; but then his infantile blue eyes, hardly visible beneath their massive arches, looking dim, dreary, almost unconscious, and his clothing was so shabby that the court almost hesitated to let the case proceed under his management.

"Has your name been entered upon the rolls of the State?" demanded the Judge, suspiciously.

"It is immaterial about my name being on yours," answered the stranger, his thin lips curling up into a fiendish sneer. "I may be allowed the courtesy of the court and bar. Here is my license from the highest tribunal of America," and he handed Judge Mills a blood parchment.

The trial immediately went on. In the examination or witnesses the stranger evinced very little ingenuity, as commonly thought. He suffered each one to tell his story without interruption, though he generally managed to make each one tell it over two or three times. He put a few cross-questions, which with keen witness almost served to correct mistakes; he made no notes, which in mighty memories only tend to embarrass.

The examination being ended, as counsel for the plaintiff he had a right to the opening as well as the closing speech; but to the astonishment of every one he declined the former, and allowed the defence to lead off.

Then a shadow might have been seen to flash across the features of Pike, and to darken the bright eye of Prentiss. They saw they had "caught a Tartar," but who it was or how it happened was impossible to guess.

Col. Ashley spoke first. He dealt the jury a disintegrated course of logic which afterwards rendered him famous in the Senate of the Union.

The poet, Albert Pike, followed with a vein of wit, and a hair torrent of ridicule, in which neither the plaintiff nor her ragged attorney were forgotten or spared.

The great Prentiss called for the defendant with a flow of gorgeous words, brilliant as a shower of falling stars with bursts of ecstasy, that shook the house down in echoes, in which even the sworn jury joined, notwithstanding the stern order of the bench.

Thus wonderfully susceptible are the Southern people to the charms of impassioned eloquence.

It was the stranger's turn. He remained apparently abstracted during all the previous speeches. Still, and straight, and motionless in his seat, his pale smooth forehead shone bright like a mountain cone of snow, and but for that continued twitch that came and went perpetually in his face, you would have taken him for a mere man of marble or a human form carved in ice. Even his dreary eyes were invisible beneath those grey, shaggy eyebrows.

But now at last he rises—before the bar, not behind it—and so near the wondering jury that he might touch the foreman with his long, bony fingers. With eyes half shut, and standing rigid as a pillar of iron, his thin lips curled as if in measureless scorn, slightly apart, and the sound came forth.

At first it is low and sweet, insinuating itself into the brain, as an artless tune winning its way into the recesses of the heart, like the melody of the magic incantation, while the speaker proceeds without a gesture or the least sign of excitement to tear to pieces the argument of Ashley, which melts away at his touch as frost before the sunbeam. Every one looks surprised. His logic was at once brief, and so luminously clear, that the roughest peasant could comprehend it without an effort.

Now, he came to the dazzling wit of the poet lawyer, Pike. Then the curl of his lip grew sharper, his smooth face began to kindle up, and his eyes to open; dim and dreary no longer, but vivid as lightning, red as fire glances, and glaring as twin meteors. The whole soul was in his eyes, the full heart streamed out of his face. In five minutes Pike's wit seemed like foam of jelly, and his finest satire, horrible pretentious when compared with the unimpeachable and uncompromising sarcasm of the stranger, interspersed with jests and anecdotes that blacked the faces with laughter.

Then without any grace, as bestowing an answer upon Prentiss he turned to the jury, and in a few periphrastic sentences of Hopkins, who had been the mainstay of the defence, he actually did in a few sentences, and twice over actually did in a few sentences, what the court house, the excitement of the crowd was beginning to tremble. The unit life and soul seemed to hang upon the burning tongue of the stranger. He inspired them with the power of his own passions. He saturated them with the poison of his own malicious feeling. He was son to the sea of all thoughts and emotion that rose and fell, and boiled in the billows as he chose. But his great triumph was to come.

His eyes began to glance furtively at the assassin Hopkins, as his lean taper fingers assumed the same direction. He hemmed the wretch with a circumvallation of strong evidence and impregnable argument, cutting off all hope of escape.

He piled up large bastions of insurmountable facts. He dug beneath the murderer and slanderer's feet ditches of dilemmas, such as no sophistry could overleap and no secrets of ingenuity could evade; and thus having, as one might say, impounded his victim and girt him about like a scorpion in a circle of fire, he stripped himself to the work of massacre.

Oh! then it was a vision both glorious and dreadful to behold the orator. His actions before as the waves of a golden billow in the ocean, grew impetuous as the motion of an oak in a hurricane.

His voice became a trumpet filled with wild whistles, deafening the ear with the crash of power, and yet intermingling all the while with a sweet undertone of the softest cadence. His face was as red as a drunkard's—his forehead glowed like a heated furnace, his countenance was haggard like that of a maniac, and ever and anon he flung his long and bony arms on high, as if grasping after thunderbolts.

He drew a picture of murder in such appalling colors that, in comparison, hell itself might be considered beautiful. He painted the slanderer so black that the sun seemed dark at noonday, when shining on such an accursed monster, and then fixing both portraits on the drinking Hopkins, he fastened them there forever. The agitation of the audience unaccounted almost to madness.

All at once the speaker descended from his periphrastic height. His voice waited but for the murder red dead and living—the beautiful Mary, more beautiful every moment as her tears flowed faster—still wept and sobbed like a child.

He closed by a strange exhortation to the jury, and through them to the bystanders. He advised the panel after they should bring in a verdict for the plaintiff not to offer violence to the defendant, however richly he might deserve it; in other words, not to lynch the villain, but leave his punishment with God.

This was the artful trick of all, and the best calculated to insure vengeance.

The jury rendered a verdict of twenty thousand dollars, and the next afternoon Hopkins was taken out of his bed by lynchers and beaten almost to death.

As the court adjourned, the stranger made known his name, and called the attention of the public with the announcement—John Taylor will preach this evening at early candle-light.

The crowd all turned out. Taylor's sermon equaled, if it did not surpass, the splendor of his forensic effort. This is not exaggeration. I have listened to Clay, Webster and Calhoun—but never heard anything in the form of sublime words, even remotely approximating to the eloquence of John Taylor—massive as a mountain, and wildly rushing as a cataract of fire? And this is the opinion of all who have heard this wonderful man.

HAVE YOU A FRIEND.

Have you a friend? 'Tis hard to find
One who is tried and true;
One who at all times is the same,
And firmly clings to you.

Have you a friend, no flatterer?
One who will always speak
With honesty and truthfulness
When his advice you seek?

Have you a friend to sympathize
In every joy and woe,
To love in health, and tender nurse
Should sadness lay you low?

Have you a friend to whom your heart
Can ever open,
To whom you every thought and word
Is unreserved and free?

Have you a friend—come to recall,
When you're lonely, lonely stay
From out the joys of home,
How you're lonely stay?

Have you a friend? 'Tis the best gift
Of earth that Heaven can give;
For though all may say that I am old,
He never grows old.

And this best gift to Heaven alone
Another link shall bind;
For friends on earth together more
Heavenly shall spend.

QU'APPELLE.

—There is about fifty feet of water in the new C. P. R. well.

—Yesterday would have been a splendid day for a gazing match.

—Summer heat continues unabated, though the nights are cool and pleasant.

—Don't forget the Brass Band meeting on Monday next in Mr. G. H. Buley's store at 20 o'clock.

—On Monday last 40,000 lbs. of freight were shipped from here to Prince Albert by Messrs. Thomson & Nelson forwarders.

—Mr. T. W. Jackson, M. N. W. C., was in town with the Fort Qu'Appelle team on Saturday last and again yesterday.

—Rev. Mr. Hamilton, of this place and Mr. Munson of Long Lake (both Presbyterians) exchanged services last Sunday.

—The new buildings and grading on Walsh st. have completely transformed its appearance, it being so very much improved. Some attention should have been given to Tenth avenue as well.

—We owe our thanks to Mr. J. R. Brown for remembering us at different times this season with some of the first fruits of his vegetable garden. He sent us last week a lot of fine new potatoes.

—On Monday last Benjamin Levi, a Jew peddler was brought up before Mr. G. S. Davidson, J. P., for peddling without license, and fined $20 and costs. Peddlars will do well to give Qu'Appelle a wide berth.

—At the Queen's: A. J. Stewart, W. Isbister, Prince Albert; D. W. Buchanan, D. H. McMillan, Winnipeg; Fred Aston, G. R. Ball, J. C. Bowes, M. Sherman, E. Sherlock, Grenfell; Henry Shannon, Wm. Davidson, Toronto; Col. McDonald, Crooked Lake; John Beattie, Fergus; Ont.; H. A. Mitchell, Decat Lake.

—Elsewhere will be found an advertisement of the Winnipeg "Emigrant," a monthly journal devoted to Northwest general matters. It is an excellent periodical to take to become and keep posted in regard to Manitoba and the Northwest. A representative of the "Emigrant" will be in town to-day to solicit your subscriptions.

—Rev. A. Andrews, Superintendent of the Regina District of the Methodist church, returned on Tuesday evening from his trip through the northern part of the District. He was accompanied by Mrs. Andrews. They visited Prince Albert, Battleford and Saskatoon. Mr. Andrews reports that they have a fair crop of all kinds of grain at Prince Albert, but at Battleford and Saskatoon it is a partial failure.

—Mr. W. D. Peckey, M. N. W. C., paid our town a visit on Monday last, on Tuesday he went to Indian Head and from there to Katopwa. He was accompanied by a government engineer. While there they located the site of a new bridge across the Qu'Appelle river. He returned to Qu'Appelle in the afternoon and took the night train for home. The bridge across the Qu'Appelle at Katopwa is to be built at once, the money therefor having been granted by Lieutenant-Governor Doughty.

CRICKET.

FORT QU'APPELLE VS. QU'APPELLE.

On Saturday last a match game of cricket was played here between teams of cricketers from Fort Qu'Appelle and the town. The Fort team comprised some finished cricketers, and their play rather surprised our boys. The Qu'Appelle team took the bats first, with very poor result, not one extra being made by them. The Fort team in one innings made 186 as against 55 for the town men in two innings. The following is the score:

At the conclusion of the game the Qu'Appelle boys entertained the Fort team to a dinner at the Queen's hotel, which was partaken of by the members of both clubs.

In the above match, Mr. A. J. Baker acted as scorer and Mr. R. D. Strong as umpire for Qu'Appelle, and Mr. Caldwell as scorer and Mr. Atherton as umpire for Fort Qu'Appelle.

QU'APPELLE VS. GRENFELL.

On Tuesday a cricket match was played here between a team from Grenfell and one from our town club. The Grenfell team took the bats first and made a score of 72; Dr. Elliot making 15, the highest single score. The bowling of Qu'Appelle was good, and the bowling of Thompson and Flavell excellent. The Qu'Appelle boys took the bats determined to make a better record than on the previous Saturday, which we are pleased to say they did, still their score was 10 less than their opponents on the first innings. Though the bowling of Dr. Elliot made them watch their wickets closely five of them were caught out. Cumner scored 22 and Taylor 14; total in first innings 62. In the second innings the Grenfell team they only scored 56, the highest being 10 by Aston. The swift underhand bowling of Johnston putting down five of the wickets. The second innings for Qu'Appelle was not played out, as it had been previously agreed upon that "time" should be called at 5 o'clock. When called our boys had scored 56, requiring 11 to win the game, and they had two wickets to go down. If it had been arranged to play the game out it is probable that the Qu'Appelle team would have won the match as both Fleming and Love the two not out are good batters.

The following is the score:

Mr. R. D. Strong was umpire and Mr. A. J. Baker scorer for Qu'Appelle and Mr. Ball umpire and Mr. Roberts scorer for Grenfell.

After the match the players partook of dinner at the Queen's hotel.

In the evening a grand ball was given in the Immigrant Building, at which there was a large attendance from Grenfell, Indian Head and Qu'Appelle. The dance and refreshment rooms were handsomely decorated with paper boughs, flags, games, Chinese lanterns, etc. There were some splendidly dressed ladies present, in fact all the ladies were not only good looking but well and tastefully dressed, while the gentlemen were elegant and gay. We speak advisedly when we say that this ball was one of the most pleasing and successful ever held in the Northwest. Mr. E. W. Warner was floor manager and Mr. J. H. McCall, secretary of the committee.

An irate subscriber once threatened to stop his paper, whereupon the editor remarked in his next issue: "After you get on your own paper, to make the editor feel humiliated, just put your finger in water and then pull it out and look for the hole." The effect is just the same.

A Father Rebuked.

Colonel McLeod, although not a bad man at heart, used very rough language in his intercourse with his family. On returning to his home from his place of business, a few days ago, he found his wife very much excited over the outrageous conduct of a tramp, who being dissatisfied with the food given him by Mrs. McLeod, had abused her in a most outrageous manner.

"Johnny said Colonel McLeod to his ten year old son, 'when you heard that cowardly scoundrel abusing your mother, why didn't you run to the store quick, and let me know? Didn't you hear?'"

"Yes, pa, I was out in the stable and heard what he said about the victuals he was giving him, and how he abused her, but—"

"But what?"

"I thought it was you scolding me. He used the same old words as usual, when the dinner don't suit you, so I thought it couldn't be any body else but you. I didn't think anybody else would dare talk to ma that way."

"Johnny unconsciously administered a severe rebuke to his irascible pa, who never again spoke to his wife as if he were a tramp.—Times Dispatch."
